

“Giving a gift to Foundations in Education will dramatically change a child’s life forever.” – David Diehl

David Diehl, former New York Giants offensive lineman and two-time Superbowl Champion, recently sat down with Ella, Aria and Lamar to talk about Catholic education. As a Catholic school alumnus, David knows firsthand that our schools foster not only academic excellence, but also an environment of shared values and loving support.

“I was taught very early how important it was to go to a Catholic school and get a Catholic education - not just for the curriculum, but for the character it builds and instills in you as an individual,” said David. His father and mother worked six days a week to put David and his two brothers through Catholic school. “The investment they made was an investment they would get in us being quality people, being people of God, and us going out and making a difference in our communities and being leaders.” He also shared that his best friends in life are the very friends he made at his Catholic elementary and high school.

David talked with our students about the importance of education, prayer, and giving back – something he encourages us to do as well.

“It’s very important for all of us to be able to give back,” David remarked. “We’ve been granted so many blessings and so many gifts in our life that when you do have the opportunity to give back, it’s one of the most important things you can do.”
